A Translation of the Old Testament Scriptures from the Original Hebrew Helen Spurrell

Helen Spurrell - The wife of a pastor, and an accomplished musician, artist and sculptor. A scholar of Bulliol College, Oxford University, Spurrell taught herself Hebrew after the age of 50 with the objective of translating the Bible of Israel. She is a noted Hebrew scholar and this work reflects her in-depth research and knowledge. In 1885 Mrs. Spurrell published this version of the Old Testament in her scholarly work that was translated entirely from an unpointed Hebrew text, that is, a Hebrew Bible that is written in the consonantal text, with all consonants, no vowels. Research indicates that Helen Spurrell's work is perhaps THE best English translation of the Old Testament ever, This version is straight from the original Hebrew text and disregards the vowel points found in the Masoretic text. Mrs Spurrell dismissed the Masoretic Hebrew text as the frail invention of man. It has been reported by a bible translation collector of over 20 years that early on, most of the copies of Spurrell's Bible were lost in a fire. Sources cited the publication "English Language Bible Translators, 2003" as having reported that fire was the reason so few of the copies still exist of this original work.
