Claire was as vanilla as they come. A major in Art History was all she had to show for herself at 24 years old.

As the middle child and "good girl" of a devout Christian family, she had taken it upon herself to uphold the ideals her family had tried to instill in her other siblings. However, going through life just to make her parent's happy wasn't providing Claire with the satisfaction she so desired.

It all started with a tattoo. Claire has struggled romantically throughout her life, despite being quite attractive and developed. In an attempt to spice her life up and secretly "rebel" from her Christian upbringing, she went to a tattoo parlor. It was there she met Felicia.

Felicia, a tattoo artist with creamy white skin with a knack for corrupting innocent women, takes Claire on a journey into a world unbeknownst to even her wildest fantasies. Claire is in over her head, but has never felt so alive. It is then Felicia shows Claire what her really profession is.

At the peak of excitement, pleasure, and intrigue, Claire demands to become Felicia's protégé. But the question is... Can she handle it?
